85- In another column will be found a communication over the signature of Dr. Alex. Shaw, in relation to the present militia law. It does not become us, as the publisher of a democratic journal, to show any preference for any of the various democratic candidates for the nomination for county offices and therefore we feel ourselves bound to give both sides an equal chance. After the nominations by the convention are made, we conceive it to be our duty to support the nominees.

83- Some good whigs of our county have been making a great noise about some votes which they after the duel between Graves and Cilley, in which allege were given by James K. Try again, gentlemen, perhaps you will be able to clear your whig candidate for governor; perhaps not. We guess this thing of hunting up old journals is a bad business

The Journal of last evening, with its usual recklecklessness and ignorance of the character of its own friends, in speaking of Mr. Polk, asks:

"Whether he did not on five several occasions vote against bills for the relief of the surviving officers and soldiers of the revolution?"

By a reference to the journals of the House o Congress we are enabled to answer this question, which will put the editor of the Journal to shame and confusion. Where does it put MORDECAI BARTLEY and his clique of bargain and sale triends in the House of Congress? Where? Yes, where are they? Can the Journal answer? Look at it! Read it!

Friends of the revolutionary soldier in Ohio can you vote for this Clay coon clique of bargain and sale memory? No! No!! No!!! will resound from every quarter of the State. Here are the votes; let those who stand blasted by them before public indignation, thank the editor of the Journal for dragging them to the glare of the mid day sun. MORDECAI BARTLEY when in his seat at all, voted solid against the old war beaten soldier of '76.

DUELLING.

The following letter of Mr. Frelinghuysen against duelling comes in very good play about this time. It deserves a place with the standing matter of the whig Journals. The letter was written Henry Clay bore such a conspicuous part. How do you like it friend Whigs?

TRENTON, N. J. MARCH 5, 1838. I sincerely regret that my professional duties here will detain me from

It can be checked and effectually repressed, whenever the people true to their high duties shall rise in the majesty of public opinion, and frown upon these ATTRO-CIOUS DEEDS OF VIOLENCE; and the blood of the MURDERED, the tears of the bereaved, and the commands of a righteous God, call upon them aow to speak, and bear their stern and indignant testimony against this HEAVEN DARING

I hope, gentlemen, that your meeting and pro ceedings may exert a powerful influence, and with kindred demonstrations all over the land, prevail to crush this alarming evil.

For the Spirit of Democracy. THE MILITIA LAW. Mr. Editor: I have noticed an effort on the par of some to do Mr. E. Archbold injustice by connecting him with the odious militia law, which passed the last session of the Ohio legislature.-A Mr. John Hampton Lewis has been prompte by his zeal for the cause of truth, to send by mail for a copy of the Journal of the House of Repre sentatives, that he might learn the truth as to Mr. Archbold's course on the passage of the militia law Having been favored with the journals by Mr Lewis, I find, on page 524, the vote on the fina passage of the bill, and Mr. Archbold's name is recorded among those who voted against it. Mr. A. has uniformly denied having voted for the bill and asserted that he argued against it on the floor of the House of Representatives that it was subessary and inexpedient, and uncalled for by the people; that its operation was unjust and unequal, and that our taxes are already enormous and exorbitant. Why it is, that an effort has been made to connect Mr. Archbold with this justly odious bill, I am at a loss to know, unless it has been done for unpopularity of this bill, and thereby rendering him as odious as the bill. I regard the circulation of such ridiculou falsehoods on a par with much of the political slang used against all faithful servants of the people. It is much to be deplored that political aspirants attempt to ride into office by calumniating their opponents. Efforts are making to foster the false charge upon Mr. Archbold by exhibiting bled portions of the journals; but let no man be deceived when he wishes to see Mr. Archbold's vote on the final passage of the hill; let him look on page 524, and there he will see his name rethe truth of the above statement as to Mr. Arch-

the purpose of connecting his popularity with the

All I wish to see is fair play and no misrepresentation. If he has in truth, been guilty of any thing that should render him repugnant to his constitu-ents, let him stand or fall on his own merits. "Let justice be done though the Heavens fall."
